Camps 'much better'

THERE has been an impressive improvement in the conditions in which Indochinese refugees in Thailand are being kept, United Nations General Assembly President Salim Ahmad Salim said yesterday.

Speaking at Don Muang Airport at the end of a three-day visit to Thailand, Mr Salim said that the conditions at the camps he visited in Prachin Buri had improved greatly.

He appealed to other countries to understand the problems of the region and to support Thailand, which, he said, has shouldered a great burden in taking care of the refugees.

He said the Thai leaders he had spoken to wanted the forthcoming Geneva conference on aid to Khmers to be concerned only with humanitarian issues and did not want political issues to mar the conference.
